How to teach Digital Citizenship

"A digital citizen is anyone who uses information technology in order to engage in society, politics, and government. So, that's all of us, right?! We can certainly all agree that our teenage learners are digital natives. They use technology in one form or other every day. But how do we teach teenagers to be competent digital citizens throughout their lifelong relationship with technology and the internet? In this webinar you will be introduced to new and engaging methodologies and activities that will help you confidently approach the subject of Digital Citizenship with your students"

B2 First Reading and Use of English: Activities for the Classroom On and Offline

The session will look at preparing learners for the B2 First and B2 First for Schools Reading and Use of English paper and will consider how to exploit exam task types from this exam paper to promote learning. This will include exploring teaching ideas and classroom activities to use in a variety of contexts, in the face to face classroom, online and in remote teaching contexts. It will be followed by a session about using Cambridge English weekly for course planning.

Comparing Belgian and Canadian Values and how to criticize in different cultures

In this workshop, we will do an activity on Belgium and Canada called Cultural Values Contrast with Jamboard to examine and compare values in the two cultures. Once we have an understanding of the values of the two cultures, we will reflect on the value of feedback, ways of giving and responding to feedback and how it differs in different cultures.
